Warm wood siding, broad rooflines, and expansive glass give this single-story home a distinctly modern character while keeping it connected to the outdoors. The interior centers on an open kitchen, dining, and living area, creating a natural gathering place for everyday meals, conversation, and entertaining. Three bedrooms are arranged away from the main living spaces for added privacy, with multiple baths supporting both household members and guests. Generous windows bring light into the central living areas, while several exterior doors extend the home onto surrounding decks for easy indoor-outdoor living. The combination of open gathering spaces, private bedroom areas, and extensive outdoor connections creates a comfortable layout that feels relaxed, contemporary, and well suited to daily life.
